

Music at the Crossroads

The Changing Nature of Irish Music 1930s - 1990s

Eamon T Shackleton

Master of Business Administration
Open University, Milton Keynes

PI: M7144015

This dissertation is submitted in respect of MA in Popular Culture

20 April 2000

Acknowledgements

The author wishes to express his appreciation for bibliographic searching by Lesley Vize. Also to Beth Sweeney of the Irish Music Centre attached to Boston College. The Irish Traditional Music Archive must also be thanked for providing much valued material for this dissertation.

No part of this dissertation has previously been submitted for a degree or other qualification of the Open University or any other university or institution. The entire work has been prepared by the author alone.

Finally, heartfelt thanks and appreciation to Heather Loughheed who provided all the typing skills.

CONTENTS

Page

Acknowledgements

1. Introduction.....	1-1
1.1. Ireland of the 1990s.....	1-2
1.2. The Role of Music in Society.....	1-4
1.3. Authenticity.....	1-11
1.4. The Influence of Broadcasting and Media.....	1-18
1.5. Outline of Thesis.....	1-21
2. The Roots of Change.....	2-24
2.1. One Country, Three Musics.....	2-24
2.2. The End of the Bardic Traditions.....	2-25
2.3. The Seeds of the Great Famine.....	2-28
2.4. Community Life.....	2-28
2.5. Emigration.....	2-32
2.6. Marriage and the Family.....	2-33
2.7. The Growth of the Church.....	2-35
2.8. A Conservative New State.....	2-39
3. Traditional Music in Crisis.....	3-43
3.1. Music and Dance.....	3-43
3.2. Ireland - The Early Years.....	3-45
3.3. National Radio Broadcasting.....	3-47
3.4. Utopian Dreams.....	3-49
3.5. The Coming of the Céilí Bands.....	3-52
3.6. The Popularity of Dance Music from America.....	3-54
3.7. Irish Music Fades.....	3-55
3.8. The 'Old Ways' are Challenged.....	3-58
3.9. Urban Sprawl.....	3-60
4. Irish Music in America.....	4-62
4.1. Irish Music Abroad.....	4-62
4.2. The Scotch-Irish.....	4-63
4.3. American Influence on Irish Music.....	4-64
4.4. The Famine Emigrants.....	4-65

4.5.	American Immigration Control	4-67
4.6.	Paddy Working on the Railroad	4-67
4.7.	Irish Music Changing	4-68
4.8.	The Early Recordings of Irish Music	4-72
4.9.	Irish Music Goes Out of Fashion	4-73
4.10.	Céilí Bands.....	4-74
4.11.	Irish Music Popularity Returns	4-76
4.12.	Looking Towards the Future	4-77
5.	The Decades of Change	5-78
5.1.	The Céilí Band Eclipsed	5-78
5.2.	New Trends.....	5-79
5.3.	Pluralism in Ireland.....	5-81
5.4.	National Migration	5-81
5.5.	Dublin Grows Larger	5-83
5.6.	Social Mobility	5-74
5.7.	The O'Riada Revolution.....	5-84
5.8.	The Revolution Continues	5-86
5.9.	Folk and Traditional.....	5-87
5.10.	Pop, Jazz and Traditional	5-87
5.11.	Rock and Traditional	5-88
5.12.	Classical and Traditional	5-88
5.13.	Showtime and Traditional	5-89
5.14.	Globalization	5-90
5.15.	Political Pragmatism.....	5-91
5.16.	Ireland Comes Out	5-92
5.17.	Reflections	5-92
6.	Conclusions	6-94
6.1.	Overview	6-94
6.2.	The Emergence of a Professional Elite.....	6-97
6.3.	Modernization and Urbanization	6-101
6.4.	Music and its Surroundings	6-104

Bibliography